featuring

Mary Jo Ignoffo

In her tell-all book, Captive of the Labyrinth: Sarah L. Winchester, Heiress to the Rifle Fortune, Mary Jo lays out her research and findings, and she shares the biggest deceptions surrounding one of California's top tourist attractions.

Come and learn of the “mysteries” that attract thousands of people each year which Mary Jo reveals as manufactured by a family of 1920s-era carnies who first leased and then later purchased the property.

Her passion for history and story-telling has led her to author six books that provide in-depth and original looks at fascinating moments in history including Captive of the Labyrinth: Sarah L. Winchester, Heiress to the Rifle Fortune; Gold Rush Politics: California's First Legislature; La Verdad: A Witness to the Salvadoran Martyrs.

Mary Jo has been interviewed for film documentaries and has worked as a preservation consultant in California, and contributed research to state, county, and city historic building surveys; her articles or book reviews have appeared nationwide.
